

JURY CALLED IN $75,000 ALIENATION SUIT

ATTORNEYS BLAME LEGISLATION FOR RAILROAD EVILS

CADY IS CHIEF SPEAKER AT COUNTY BAR BANQUET.

JUSTICES TALK

Too Much Vote-Getting Propaganda, Says Vinje, Chief Justice.

Hampering regulatory legislation, taxes and requirements were blamed for many of the transportation evils of the modern railroad during speeches by railroad counsels at the annual banquet of the Rock County Bar association held Monday night in the Grand hotel. The meeting, one of the most successful held by the organization of stock companies in association with a state regulation for its hospitality and fine programs—was attended by 125 men, many of whom were guests from both city and country.

The annual address was given by Samuel H. Cady, Milwaukee, Wisconsin counsel for the C. and N. W. R. R.

While the judges present carefully guarded their statements, those from the Wisconsin supreme court and the branches of the federal court in Wisconsin, spoke on pending problems.

Justice Vinje Speaks

"We are in a conflict between personal and property rights," declared Chief Justice J. Vinje. "Today more there is no such thing as property rights, except as the so-called rights are vested in rational human beings that involve the holding of property."

"There has been too much vote-getting propaganda by satellite politicians."

"We have legal and illegal larceny and of the two the legal larceny is by far the worst, indicating a serious decadence of principle. We need a higher code of ethical ideas among voters and among those elected. We are going faster with the passage of legislation than we are in putting that legislation into practical effect."

Need Serious Thought

Burr W. Jones, justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, whose early home was in Union township, Rock county, remarked on the work of the railroads in the beliefing that the so-called radical bills would not sweep the law books.

"Have we lost powers to stand up for rights?" asked Judge C. Z. Lutz, Superior of the western federal court for Wisconsin. "If we have lost that power then it is due mainly to the lack of necessary information. Too often people do not take the time trouble and effort to obtain accurate information and then spread it."

Judge F. A. Geiger, eastern district, Wisconsin federal court, and William Jackson Milwaukee, former district attorney of Rock county made short speeches.

More Serious Thinking

"This a day of serious thinking," declared J. A. Craig. "Unless we get more information to the people on such problems as that of transportation, we are not going to cope with these vital problems unless more truth and less propaganda is made known."

Arthur McLeod, Madison, clerk of the supreme court was also in attendance.

All judges and officials of the court expressed pleasure at attending the bar meeting and banquet, declining the Rock County association to be one of the most creditable organizations in the state.

During the meeting tribute was paid to former Chief Justice Winslow.

S. H. Cady spoke at length. Among other things he said:

Political Issue

A casual visitor in this country would probably say that the outstanding political issue of the hour is the trusts.

If the visitor observed a bit closer,

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

TREND OF PRICES SHOWN BY BUREAU

American Farm Bureau Issues Statement on Farm Product Markets.

(Farm Bureau Research Department) Compared with a year ago 10 leading farm commodities have advanced in price, while 12 have declined and two show no change. Compared with a year ago, 16 are higher and eight are lower.

Hog prices are slightly lower than a year ago and more than $1 lower than a year ago when sharp advance occurred in January and February. It is significant in this connection also that corn prices are nearly 10 per cent higher than a year ago.

Receipts of hogs at the 11 leading markets in the last five weeks have been 25 per cent larger than last year and nearly 10 per cent larger than the 10-year average for the corresponding period. Despite the increase in number of hogs slaughtered, stocks of lard in storage at leading packing points on February 1 were only about 35 per cent of the five-year average. Stocks of hog meats increased less than usual for January and holdings on February 1 were 13 per cent below the average.

Domestic shipments of hog products continue at a high rate and exports especially of lard have been unusually heavy in the last few weeks. It is reported, however, that these shipments applied on old contracts and packers state that new export sales in the last month have been light. Since receipts of hogs have shown a slight decline during February and March and no burdensome storage stocks have been accumulated thus far, hog market prospects in the next few weeks are fairly bright even if exports should decline.

Cattle prices have shown no decided trend either up or down. Receipts at leading markets have been approximately 14 per cent larger than a year ago which is less than might have been expected in view of the government's estimate that there were 25 per cent more cattle on feed in the corn belt on January 1 than a year ago. Demand for cattle remains fair, but broilers and some carcass cattle seem to have occurred in the last two weeks. The character of receipts is changing as finished steers are becoming more numerous and common cattle more scarce.

Lamb prices are running about the same as last year at the principal markets and the number of sheep on the corn belt and irrigated sections on January 1, 1923, was estimated officially at 30 per cent more than that date in 1922. Most of the winter fed lambs to be marketed in the next few months will come from Colorado and adjacent states and are apt to be fed on the market gradually.

Wool prices show an upward tendency both in this country and in foreign markets. Consumption by domestic mills remains at a high level and the demand for woolen goods is broad. Domestic consumption in 1922 appears to have been the largest in the history of the industry.

Receipts of butter at the four leading markets in January were probably the largest they have ever been earlier than the month of May and were 25 per cent larger than in December, 1922. Although arrivals since the first of the year have been 13 per cent larger than in December, prices have averaged materially higher. Cheesecakes receipts have increased over last year at this time but the rate of consumption remains high and prices although lower than a year ago are substantially higher than last year.

Egg receipts also have been setting new records at this time of year and during January were about 75 per cent larger than in either November or December as a result of the seasonal gain in the lay. Prices are lower than a year ago and much lower than a month ago. Poultry prices have advanced in the last month as consumptive demand in both foreign and domestic falling off and stocks of frozen poultry in storage which usually reach high water mark at about this season will soon begin to decline.

When It's Down

The wheat market in the last month has been bombarded by an array of adverse influences including heavy rainfall, an increase in wheat available in commercial channels in this country, Canada and elsewhere, slowing down in the flour markets, small reported sales for export with Argentina and Canadian wheat cheaper than our own, and failure of importing countries to purchase at the rate indicated by their theoretical needs. Wheat prices have held relatively stable for six weeks and exports of wheat and flour in the last five weeks as reported by the Department of Commerce have aggregated 20,236,000 bushels in spite of inactivity reported from day to day. Damage to the new winter crop by dry weather in Kansas and Oklahoma has helped to support the market.

Corn Is Up

Corn prices are near the season's high mark again. Receipts are falling off at all primary markets and domestic consumption is unusually heavy. A large amount of old corn left for export and her new crop has been severely damaged by drought.

The strong statistical situation in cotton keeps pushing prices higher. Domestic consumption remains high. Exports were at a lower rate than in December but were only two or three per cent less than in the corresponding weeks a year ago.

Potato prices remain close to the bottom figures of the crop year as shipments from producing states are running substantially above the average for this time of year. Shipments of apples likewise are abnormaly heavy. Prices are stable but are much lower than last year. Stocks of apples in storage are substantially above the average.

WILL NAME BOARD FOR HANDLING THE LIVESTOCK PAVILION

A permanent organization will be effected to take charge of the operation of the Rock County Livestock pavilion as the result of a resolution passed at the meeting of the Rock County commissioners held in the court house yesterday afternoon. The committee to draw up the form of organization and report at the meeting March 20 is composed of H. C. Heimannskay, Oscar Nelson and E. H. Ransom.

Final settlement with the Janesville Park association will be made at the next meeting, it was announced. Stock subscriptions are being collected by the breed associations.

BUREAU MEETING IN EVANSVILLE ON MARCH 13TH

The next meeting of the officers of the Rock County Farm Bureau will be held in Evansville on March 13. The county convention of rural housewives, organized into the group clubs, will be held in the neighboring city on the same date. There are members in the clubs from all but one of the township and townships. W. G. Patterson, of the Farm Bureau, has requested the appointment of women representatives from all the towns.

There is to be a morning meeting of the executive committee, dinner at noon and a short after business meeting to be followed by an address. It is hoped to secure Dean Russell to make one of the speeches.

GOOD MILK CHECKS FROM GUERNSEY HERD

Marl Manvel, Milton Junction, has a herd of 16 grade Guernseys. A number freshened in the summer and that balanced in the fall. The herd is milked during January producing 14,400 pounds of milk while receiving 4,65 per cent, bringing a total revenue of $4,264.

USE SKIM MILK FOR FEEDING LIVESTOCK

"I value my calf crop just twice as much as I do my returns from fluid milk," declared Bert Skinner, a breeder of Brown Swiss cattle. "There is no question but what there is more money in feeding skim milk, to growing out better livestock for sale as breeding stock."

Brown Swiss breeders report an active demand for good stock at the present time.

"We could sell several carloads of good quality grade stock at the present time," reports Ira Human, national secretary of the Brown Swiss breeders.

BRIEFS BY WIRE

Washington—Benjamin Cook, secretary for Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma, has taken up the home expiring Sunday started suit against her for $10,000 for alleged slander.

Philadelphia.—United States Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania said that there is a growing movement among a "very considerable number of senators" to limit the field of filibustering in the senate.

Indiana—Indiana senators passed a soldiers bonus bill 27 to 19. Parts of the bill were about 75 per cent larger than in either November or December as a result of the seasonal gain in the lay. Prices are lower than a year ago and much lower than a month ago. Poultry prices have advanced in the last month as consumptive demand in both foreign and domestic markets is unusually heavy. A large amount of old corn left for export and her new crop has been severely damaged by drought.

London—Reuter's correspondent at London says the visit to Court of Justice, Herrmann, the former Emperor's wife, is being undertaken for the purpose of inspecting Wilhelm's property there.

Norfolk, Va.—Shipment of American coal to Germany, said to be the result of the French seizure of the Kuhl mines, will begin at Hampton Roads, according to this week's issue of "Petersburg Fin." Walter Pickensley Conkey, prominent publisher of Chicago, died at his winter home here.

of the city clerk and treasurer, on motion of Alderman Ransom.

Notices of suitable locations for the recovery of taxes paid under protest in 1922 were read by the city clerk, constituting a follow-up of the footnotes two weeks ago when the council rejected the banks' claims. The banks are taking these steps merely to preserve their rights.

$8,000 to Mierswa

Payment of $8,000 was ordered to the Mierswa Construction company on its contract for the $100,000 Eastern outlet street.

Following a report from City Engineer C. V. Koch he had criticized the survey of Rock River for which he had charged the sum of $1,000. The city attorney was instructed to draw up such an ordinance for presentation at the next meeting, March 10. The measure would require stops only at crossings where no gates or flags men are in service.

"It won't do any harm, and it might do some good toward prevention of accidents," declared Alderman Duluth.

"The public won't object to it for it would be strictly a measure for its protection," said Ald. J. K. Jensen.

To the city attorney's suggestion that the ordinance might want to endorse such a bill, Alderman Duluth replied: "I don't care if we pass it."

If we let one do it we'll have to let them all, and the first thing we know all the posts will be plastered with signs," declared Mr. Jensen.

More Lights Recommended

Alderman Duluth recommended that the lighting committee investigate to see if it would not be advisable to place more lights on Main street, particularly near the intersection of North Main and Glen streets, was voted.

Protest on Dahl Bill

A resolution offered by Ald. Glenn L. Johnson protesting against the Dahl bill, which would give the personal property offset pertaining to income tax incomes, was passed unanimously and copies were ordered sent to Senator A. E. Garey and Assemblyman A. E. Matheson.

Protest was also entered against the portion of the Dahl bill which would change the apportionment of income tax incomes, decreasing the amounts to municipality and county 50 percent.

The present apportionment of cities, 70 percent; counties, 20 percent; and state, 10 percent; would be changed by the Dahl bill to: state, 50 percent; cities, 40 percent; counties, 10 percent.

"We think it is an unjust burden upon the municipality and county and respectfully protest against its passage," said the Gardner resolution.

Reporting that he had already appeared at hearings on the Dahl bill, City Attorney Cunniff said he was authorized to appear at Madison when ever bills came up for discussion.

Refund to Denning

The city's 70 percent share of the $63,50 income tax paid by J. A. Denning, Janesville, in 1921 for his 1919 return, was ordered refunded.

Mr. Denning, who reported he paid the amount under protest, since paying the tax he said federal tax men have looked over his books and found he suffered a loss in 1919 rather than obtaining an income. In view of this finding, Ald. E. H. Ruettgers' motion that he be refunded $47.50 by this city was passed unanimously.

It followed a conference here Saturday night between Attorney General Elmer and Andrew Dougherty, attorney general of Michigan, to consider the situation caused by the diversion of lake water through the Chicago canal.

Blaine Faces About

The former announced intention of Governor Blaine to effect an agreement with the state of Illinois in order to end the legal controversy. It is renounced by the stand taken today. It is distinctly believed that the Wisconsin action before the supreme court will be dropped, as Governor Blaine formerly hinted might be the case, unless the other states refuse to join with Wisconsin.

Chicago is charged with lowering the level of Lake Michigan more than six inches by its diversion of water through the drainage canal. This action, it is said, will cause millions of dollars loss to shipping each year and to affect the water supplies of some lake cities.

Because of the use of this lake water to develop electric power for Chicago, the diversion has been called a gigantic water "steal" by J. G. D. Mack, state chief engineer for Wisconsin.

The Book of Isaiah

Statistics of the large libraries show conclusively how great is the public taste for fiction. Fiction is the ordinary people's type of story-telling which carries with it tales of human interest such as tragedy, adventure and love.

In the great Book of Isaiah chapter after chapter, and there are sixty-six of them, is replete with stirring accounts of devastation, adventure and strategy such as might have been carried in our daily newspapers in describing the late war.

That book may be read as fiction or as accurate records of authentic history according to individual belief.

Such chapter heads as the parable of the Ravaged Vineyard, Isaiah Sent to Encourage King Ahaz, Assur to Overcome Israel, The Child Who Shall Reign as Prince, Universal Peace out of the Branch of Jesse, Babylon to Become Utterly Desolate, the Doom of Syria, Egypt to Fall by Civil War, These and many others are more satisfying and thrilling reading than many of today's best sellers.

The Red Letter Large Print Bible now being distributed by this paper contains an endless amount of reading matter which it written as pure fiction by a contemporary author would bring the statistical records of genealogy and even larger figures.

Why does any one legend to read such typical literature? See today's coupon for information as to how easily this beautifully printed and handsomely bound Bible can be obtained for at this office, or mailed to you.

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—It is the republican party, in casting about for a man to head the national ticket in 1924, should give first consideration to the records made by candidates in the 1922 campaign, Robert M. La Follette would be almost in a class by himself as a presidential possibility.

Consider the figures: The Wisconsin senator was renominated by a majority of 224,000 and re-elected by a majority of 301,000. In 1916 his majority was 115,000.

It is also to be borne in mind that 1922 was not exactly a good year for republican candidates. Those who escaped defeat were lucky and those polling majorities that were 50 per cent normal were exceptionally favored of fortune. Senator La Follette's record is, therefore, little short of amazing, and it can be readily understood why his followers are still celebrating the November result.

The physical stature of the senator is not great, but as a vote-giver he looms up like the Washington monument. For years he has enjoyed the sobriquet of "Fighting Bob" and it is now a fairly well established fact that he is entitled to it, for the November returns tell the story of the kind of fighter he is and the kind of fight he puts up when he goes before the electorate. As a presidential candidate he may not make so much of a showing throughout the country, but he surely does show some spirit in Wisconsin!

Of Senator Johnson of California, it has been said that it can be set down as a certainty that he will be a candidate next year for the republican nomination for the presidency. As matters stand now, the same statement may be made of the senator from Wisconsin. He is no more likely than his colleague from the far west to step aside because a considerable element in the party believes President Harding should be renominated. Nor is it probable he will be deterred from entering the race because it is an odd-job that the president can not be defeated. He has made it fairly clear that when he wants a thing he goes after it, and no one doubts that he wants to be president.

As a matter of fact, La Follette has been after the presidency for a good many years, although he has never succeeded in making any great progress toward landing the coveted prize. For a time in 1912 it seemed that he was really in the running. When the progressive movement within the republican party first crystallized, Senator La Follette was the recognized leader and it was assumed he would be the candidate of the element that was in revolt against the Old Guard, or regular organization crowd that was bent on renominating President Taft.

Subsequent events indicated that the senator and his immediate lieutenants were proceeding on that assumption without full warrant. Theodore Roosevelt was in the movement, heart and soul, and the line came when he was convinced that if it was to make real headway and realize its greatest possibilities he would have to undertake the leadership and become the presidential candidate.

Those who ought to know insist that Roosevelt was extremely reluctant to do this, and that he would have gone along with La Follette as the candidate had it not been for the representations made to him that the Wisconsin senator could not command the maximum progressive strength outside his own state.

At any rate, Roosevelt jumped into the fight with his characteristic vigor and the La Follette boom collapsed over night. A little later the senator himself collapsed, suffering a nervous breakdown while making a speech at Philadelphia, and was in a precarious state of health for a long time thereafter. There are La Follette men who have said that this was due primarily to his bewilderment, as they termed it, by Colonel Roosevelt, and they have been extremely bitter about it. But that is all ancient history and has nothing to do with the present situation.

Roosevelt was the progressive, nominee and there are few political observers in the country who believe La Follette could have made a showing even comparable with that of the Colonel made as a third party candidate. If there is any lingering doubt about that, it may be pointed out that there was little or nothing left of the new party after Roosevelt returned to the republican fold.

On the eve of the 1924 presidential campaign there are indications of another third party movement. In many respects the situation is quite similar to that of 1912. The party has just met with reverses in the by-elections, as it did in 1910, and there are signs and sounds of revolt against President Harding just as there were against President Taft. Also it appears fairly certain that the republican organization will force Harding's renomination just as it did Taft's.

If that should come about, it is possible disgruntled elements within the republican ranks and independents from the outside will join in the launching of a new party again. In such a movement La Follette appears the logical leader, although he has a rival in Senator Johnson of California.

Johnson, however, has lately been undergoing what might be called a baptism of conservatism that may make it impossible for the progressives or radicals to follow him. There have been persistent reports that the Californian has been selected by eastern conservatives who are dissatisfied with President Harding as the candidate with whom they hope to defeat the president's renomination. This may be "good dope," or it may be wicked propaganda intended to kill off the formidable Miriam, but there's the smoke, no matter what kind of a fire causes it.

After awhile the taxes on motor cars will be so heavy that only the rich will be able to own an automobile.

SAVING THE WILD FLOWERS

Pretty soon now we will have wild flowers. It is almost time for the Rev. Henry Willmann to bring in the first of the season. But it is hoped that this year will see less of the vandal gathering of flowers than is usual. Many of the older species of wild flowers have either disappeared or become very scarce. Vandal hands have plucked them by the roots, have wilfully and wantonly and carelessly destroyed them and they no longer grow in profusion. One of the marked characteristics of the woods and prairies of Rock county in fact of all this paradise out of doors, when Holger and Inman came here in July, 1885, was the wealth of flowers on hill and in valley and woodland dells. Cannot the schools now begin with a series of talks on wild flowers and the moral side of care in plucking them, of saving the roots, of not wasting when they are gathered? The adult who wantonly killed flowers last year will probably do it again. But there is hope in the school children learning to care for and watch over the paintings Nature spreads on landscape for our pleasure.

Wisconsin wets say they will repeal all the dry laws. Probably the 18th amendment and all the federal statutes will have to go along with the rest.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. HASKIN

A LITTLE HOUSE
A little house and the children there,
A little yard and the pansies in it,
And the world outside with its pressing care,
Can be shaken off in a happy minute.

Hate may race at my back and shriek,
With its fingers gaunt it may strive to clutch me, But let me come to the door I seek,
Then I am safe and it cannot touch me.

Care may drive me and troubles press,
Malice by day may lurk behind me,
But I shut my door to life's bitterness,
There I am safe and it cannot find me.

A little house with its welcome true—
Just keep that free from the touch of sorrow,
And the world outside, when the day is through,
With its care must wait until tomorrow.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

BY ROY K. HOULTON

A FIGHT IN THE NIGHT
(Written by a Movie Fan)

The rain was slithering down fitfully.
It was in other words, a fine night for a murder.

Few pedestrians were abroad, but there were three.

These three were desperate gunmen and they were impudent.

They were men who would stop at nothing, save a cold plunge.

Chuggity-chug-chug-chuggity-chug-chug—

"Somebody is coming in an automobile, Spike."
And he is hitting on only three cylinders.

"I know who he is, too. He's Percy Proudfoot, the high-priced movie hero."

"And he's just getting home from the studio."

"Right you are, Spike, and this is pay-day and he has got his week's salary on him. Six hundred thousand bucks, Ch, Boy!"

"He's liable to put up a tough argument, Red."

"I'm the movies—yes. Now, Spike you keep the road open and let Jerry watch the road and I'll go through him."

Percy obeyed his ailing car slowly along the dark road.

"Stop your ear! Hands up! Stick 'em up, boy!"

Percy obeyed instantly. He had been half-dreaming and thought it was his director speaking.

"Step down here on the ground and keep 'em stuck up," came the stern command.

Percy did so unhesitatingly and found himself seated on a gun.

Although his director was not there, Percy knew what to do to save the salary which was tucked in his inside pocket.

He brushed the gun aside blithely, picked up the two heaviest ruffians and banged their heads together and dropped them senseless to the earth.

The third man fired. Percy turned a quick handspring dodging the bullet, and caught the third under the chin with the toe of his shoe.

The third bandit reeled and fell with a broken arm.

Percy then leisurely went through the hold-up gang.

It seems they had had a very prosperous night before they met him.

He secured 47 watches, 39 diamond ornaments and $21,897 in cash.

He calmly climbed into his car and drove chuggily toward home.

Editor's Note—"That is the way the author wrote it but we aim to publish nothing but the truth, and the ending was entirely different. It happened in real life and not in a picture, and the things were real things. The way the incident read here was like this:

"The movie hero, when returning from work and confronted by the three holdup men, immediately stepped out of his car. The leader bandit stopped him on the wrist and he sank unconscious.

Some genius has discovered that the brickbats and old bottles in the coal substitute do not produce heat.

Who's Who Today

BRIG. GEN. FRANK T. HINES.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, named by President Harding as his choice for head of the Veteran's bureau, to succeed Col. Forbes, resigned, is not endorsed by the Legion forces. There is no personal criticism against Hines.

He is the Legion spokesman and the Legion needs less military discipline and more humanitarianism. The objection is caused by the selection of a man from the regular army.

Hines was born in Salt Lake City in 1879. He went to the Agricultural College of Utah and was an honor graduate of the Artillery School in 1904. In 1910 he was graduated in the advanced course of the Coast Artillery School. His army career has been long and active. He served in 22 engagements in the Philippines and was recommended for the D. S. M. "for bravery in action against Spaniards."

While with the coast artillery in 1908 he specialized in the field of mine detection for four years. He was in southern Europe when the United States entered the war and was assigned as chief of staff of the embarkation service. He was appointed chief of embarkation in 1918 and the following year was made chief of transportation service.

It is General Hines who is largely responsible for developing the organization which carried over 2,000,000 soldiers to Europe in eighteen months and returned them home in eight months.

March 6, 1883.—The Burr Robbins establishment at Spring Brook is one of the busiest places in the city these days, as Col. Robbins is training his animals and people for his annual circus tour, to start soon. One of the first performances will be given here for the benefit of the new Janesville public library.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

March 6, 1893.—It is hoped to have police headquarters in the main post office, a telephone being all that is needed there, as there is already enough room. The shifts are being worked out—Harry Ennosa is again on duty at Sherer's drug store after being ill for some days—the ice is getting out of the gutters, but it is still 12 inches thick on the streets. More snow is predicted.

March 6, 1903.—The new social democratic party is the only hope for the future of the country, said representatives of it at a meeting of Foresters' hall last night. The entrance of the Myers theater is to be completely redecorated and remodeled. Cigar makers here are getting an increase in salary of one dollar per thousand.

TEN YEARS AGO

March 6, 1913.—A large audience was delighted with Mizzi Majos and her company in "The Rose Maid" last night at the Myers. The Janesville Boat club has recommended that the legislature pass the bill now before it to use certain funds gained by taking fish from Rock river to be used for improving it.

The Wall Flower

By MARION RUBINCAM

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Pan's mother is so shy that she does not meet people and can never find anything to say to them. As a result she makes no friends and feels like an outcast, even among her own people. She has a poor relation, with her Aunt Maudie and Uncle Peter, and their very popular daughter, Gladys. All of them tell her so often that it is hopeless to think she will ever succeed.

She does make one friend in the village, Morton Newberry. Because he is kind to her, she is easily won over to the idea that she is in love with him. Then Gladys suddenly decides she wants Morton and sets off and marries him, leaving Pandore alone.

Pan's mother, Mrs. Gates, a New York woman Pan had met before, sends for her to look after her son, Frankie.

Pan begins to find herself and to see that she was an outcast before only because she was superior, not because she was a prima donna. She falls in love with George Ridgeway whom she thinks in love with Gloria. Gloria is in love with Sam Collings, who is in love with Gladys. Sam goes on a business trip to Europe. Pan and Frankie go with her. They see Gladys. Gloria comes in one day announcing she has just married him.

A GRADUAL CHANGE

Chapter 88

"Pan will always be liked," George said once, "because she's so adaptable." She's all ready to believe the other person is as wonderful as he thinks himself."

"You're quite wrong," Gloria contradicted. "She doesn't say much, but she sees pretty clearly into the other fellow's faults, only she forgets him for them in advance."

So Pan, who had never trusted her judgment before, now felt little respect for herself in estimating people when she met them. She knew that the five other guests that Mrs. Clarke had invited.

Pan, the neglected and snubbed, was a guest of honor. Moreover, these five nice young people considered it quite a special privilege to meet her. She felt that out as soon as the first girl, a great awkward, blonde creature with a skin like cream and roses, told her—

"Aunt Belle has done nothing but talk about you since she's met you, thinks you're the loveliest thing

in the world."

And for a moment she felt as badly as when she was about to enter the "parlor" of the house in Norris City, where Gladys held court and the talk was personalized about people she scarcely knew or saw.

But these people, like Gloria's friends, included her tactfully in the talk, sensing here excusable ignorance of some subjects and explaining as they went along, so at no time was she out of it, and her self-consciousness and shyness vanished.

"Now I want to hear about America. We're going there some day, I hope," Mrs. Clarke's voice came after a long political discussion in which the present government (which always seems the least popular) had been quite demolished and a whole new one set up. "The buildings really as high as we hear them are?"

"Higher," Pan answered smiling, and steadily talked about her beloved city of New York. Mrs. Clarke, always the perfect hostess, managed it so she had several moments when she was the centre of the party. Mrs. Clarke, who adored young people, dedicated herself in turn to each of the young girls.

Ned, it appeared, was the captain—though he didn't seem very busy at it. Pan thought his talk was of everything but military matters. Ned took her home, and Ned was most charming—

"It's been splendid meeting you," he assured her at the hotel door. "Do you mind if I turn up at Aunt Belle's next time you're staying?"

A new boy was saying he wanted to see her. Pan was amused and waited as she went up the stairs to the apartment.

It had been, from Gloria's over-excited point of view, a tame and perhaps uninspiring part. But to Pan it was the event of her life. Her new friends—she felt as though she had created them all herself.

"If George had been there—" she thought as she went to sleep. "Next day she wrote him a long and enthusiastic account of it."

George sat down at once to answer this letter.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Buckwheat Cakes.—One-half cup yeast, two cups lukewarm water, one cup milk (scalded and cooled), two tablespoons brown sugar, two cups buckwheat flour, one cup sifted white flour, one teaspoon salt.

Dissolve yeast and sugar in lukewarm liquid, add buckwheat and white flour gradually, and salt. Beat well and cover and keep in a cool place.

Makes at night. In the morning stir well and bake on hot griddle. Any remaining batter may be used as yeast for another morning.

Cranberry Tart.—Line graham crust with rather short pastry. When cold, fill with whipped cream, or the white of egg beaten stiff, mixed with powdered sugar.

Lamb Curry and Rice.—Few people know how to prepare a delicious curry stew. Here is a good recipe: Get lamb rib chops; saute them a nice brown, add onions, season with salt and pepper, then add the other meat, cover and simmer over a low heat until the meat is tender. Add a little more gravy, and serve with rice.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs, and eases and heals the membranes, and gradually, but surely the annoying cough disappears entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pine's is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norwegian pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pine's" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, money promptly refunded. The Pine's Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Especially made at home, but beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and easy to make, and gives no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pine's from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer use dried molasses, honey, or corn syrup instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy nineteen. I am dearly in love with a girl who is yet in grade school. She says she loves me, but I do not know if she means it. At the same time she is out of it, and is not too conscious and shyness vanishes.

But these people, like Gloria's friends, included her tactfully in the talk, sensing here excusable ignorance of some subjects and explaining as they went along, so at no time was she out of it, and her self-consciousness and shyness vanished.

Rock County Bar Banquet. Cady's Address on Railroads

(Continued from page one) ly he would discover that the "issue" is unique in that almost everyone seems to be on one side. The news papers, the magazines and politicians (national, state, county and city and village), men found in the exclusive club or in the workshop, all unite in pointing out the services the railroads have done, more to develop the resources of the country than all the other factors combined.

In the writer happened to be acquainted with the railroads of other countries, and should travel over the vast territory within the domain of the United States, his mind led him to a profound amazement as he discovered the superiority of the railroads over those in any other.

His amazement was exceeded only by his admiration at the failing of the railroads to defend themselves.

Sources of Attack: If our railroads were to be attacked, himself to the extent of investigating the source of these attacks he would find that they originated largely in two classes of our molding citizens:

1st: Those seeking political preferment, who have observed that damming the railroads is a sure-voter-gatherer.

2nd: Those believing in communists who think that nationalization of the railroads can best be accomplished by keeping them in private and will insist that if the railroads were nationalized the nationalization of the coal, steel and oil industries would be inevitable, because of the dependence of the railroads upon them, and with these industries nationalized it would be easy to accomplish the dreams of the communists of nationalizing all industry.

The principal charges against the railroads may be classified into two heads:

1st: That the railroads are charging the public excessive rates.

2nd: That the railroads are the beneficiaries of preferential legislation in the Transportation Act of 1920.

Are Rates Excessive?

During the years from 1910 to 1917 the average of all freight rates gradually declined. During the same period there was a decided increase in the average price of wholesale commodities. The public became accustomed to constantly reduced railroad rates and finally failed to recognize that there was no economic justification for the widening divergence between rising freight costs and descending freight rates.

Christine French:

How any astute and intelligent man with a copy of the Transportation Act of 1920 (commonly called the Bach-Cunningham law) can say that the railroads are guaranteed a certain ratio of return, and to ascertain that the railroads adopted is to charge the Interstate Commerce Commission with the most gigantic fraud ever perpetrated.

But, reasoning for the sake of argument that there is seven billions of dollars in the valuation of the railroads, the railroads have not been given full control upon the investment admitted by the radicals. The result is that the period will be principally upon the admitted valuation.

But is government ownership something to be desired? I can understand how a communist can understand how he would be favorable to government ownership. In connection with his recommendations all that he says is nationalized all that would be necessary thereafter to nationalize the railroads would be to accomplish that and make sure that the railroads could not obtain the necessary coal to operate.

This would furnish the argument that the government could not be depended upon privately owned railroads, and the attacks of those who are the self-appointed guardians of the down-trodden will distract with their talk directed with scorpion-like fury upon the mine-owners and mine-operators.

son which it taught are never dwelt upon by the candidate for office. Those advocating the Plumb Plan do not point out that it cost good money, $1,000,000 in excess of receipts to operate for 26 months the railroads whose management they are prone to castigate. They may not be able to reduce this loss to a per diem basis and admit that for every day of government operation the people pay through the sale of these bonds or taxation, paid $223,000.00 to make good the daily deficit resulting from its experiment.

BLOOMINGTON, IND. — Twenty-one points made by Nyikos, Indiana forward, spelled defeat for Iowa, conference leaders, here Monday night, 23 to 21. It was the first defeat of the season for the Hawkeyes. Indiana held the lead throughout the contest, Iowa trying desperately to overcome it in a tremendous battle. Parker of Indiana and Pank of Iowa were sent out of the game with personal injuries.

WISCONSIN STEPS FAST AND TROUBLES NORTHWESTERN

MADISON — By defeating Northwestern, 29 to 17, in a fast game here Monday night, Wisconsin stepped back into the limelight as a possible contendee for the Western conference championship. This situation resulted from the defeat of Iowa by Indiana, leaving both Iowa and Wisconsin with one loss tallied against them. The Badgers still must play Chicago and Indiana this week.

Monday's game was a perfect display of foot work on the part of Wisconsin. It was hard fought throughout but the Purple team was unable to stop the Badger scoring once the machine got under way. The first half, evenly contested, ended 16 to 11 for Wisconsin. Gage, Williams and Tebel, starred for Wisconsin.

Parking Illegally

Costs Him $7.72

Floris Nichols' little mistake of parking his car in the no-parking zone on South Franklin street proved rather costly for him Monday, when he was arraigned before Judge J. L. Maxfield. Refusing to admit his guilt, Nichols was found guilty, convicted, and fined $1 and costs, a total of $7.72, or more than double the size of the assessment given the parking law violator who admits his guilt.

Jack Lynch, Delavan, was arraigned for traveling 30 miles on a non-down East Milwaukee street Sunday night, but the court was held open indefinitely. Motorcycle Patrolman George Porter made the arrest. Lynch, prepared by his attorney, J. J. Cunningham.

Charged with intoxication, the case against James Cheeseman was continued. An assault and battery action brought by Hazel Bingham against her husband, George, was held open.

LIGHTS OUT? CITY PUMPING STATION ISN'T WORRYING

Preston Elected Officer in State Boys' Work Ass'n

In the midst of a storm that may shut off electric light circuits in various parts of the city as has been the case in the past, the pumping station of the city water works won't have to get along with lamps, lanterns and candles.

The plant now has its own electric lighting system ready to be turned on.

While the pumping station has had a five-horsepower gasoline engine and small generator for 20 years or more, the engine has been out of order for the past year.

Fearing that power would be cut off again, the manager of the pumping station, Manager M. A. Griffey, called in certain officials to help him plan for an emergency.
